Hey all,

       This is the website I built for my internship with JobsGuru.ai, a startup company helping users get a job and tailor their job search specifically to them by reviewing, tweaking and making suggestions for their materials using AI. I worked on this project with the founder to co-design and build the site from the ground-up. I was tasked with competing the front end aspect, while he dealt with the back end functionality. We would meet a few times a week over Zoom to discuss new ideas, what we've worked on, and how to move forward. While unfortunately, we didn't end up using this version of the site and it is ever-so-slightly unfinished, I'm still quite proud of the end result.

- Hunter